EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

BUKOY is a unique Filipino street food product that reinvents the traditional okoy by using fresh buko (young coconut) as its main ingredient, combined with a light batter and minimal shrimp. This innovation offers a crisp, flavorful, and affordable snack that highlights a distinct Filipino taste while standing out from common okoy variants.

The product Is designed as a ready-to-eat merienda targeting students, workers, and street food lovers who are looking for something familiar yet new. BUKOY is positioned as a budget-friendly snack, sold in clearly labeled packaging to ensure brand recognition, cleanliness, and convenience for take-out customers.

BUKOY differentiates itself from competitors through its use of buko, reduced shrimp content to lower costs, and consistent quality control. Unlike traditional okoy stalls, BUKOY emphasizes branding, standardized packaging, and a more modern presentation while maintaining the authentic street food appeal.

The business aims to operate Initially through street stalls and local markets, with future expansion into food carts and small kiosks. With low production costs, accessible pricing, and strong appeal to the Filipino merienda culture, BUKOY has strong potential for profitability and scalability.

OVERVIEW OF THE BUSINESS

History

One is believed to have originated in the province of Laguna, Philippines, okoy or ukoy is a simple yet very tasty Filipino dish and appetizer made from deep fried battered baby shrimp. The shell of the shrimp is left unpeeled as it enhances the flavor and crispiness of okoy. Filipino shrimp fritters have been a popular and famous street food in the Philippines usually peddled by mobile vendors or just being sold on the street corners and commonly served during merienda (mid afternoon snack) along with other Pinoy street delicacies. Ukoy comes from Hokkien ō+kuè 'cake made from gabi' and it is pronounced (ooh-coy).

Ukoy are crispy, deep fried shrimp fritters made with a pancake-like batter, unshelled shrimp and various vegetables, including calabasa (squash), sweet potato (camote), yuca, mung bean sprouts (tongue), scallions and julienned carrots, onions and green papaya. Although these shrimp fritters started as an afternoon snack in the Philippines, it has now evolved as a side dish served in many restaurants.

Traditionally, it is served with a vinegar-based dipping sauce; like sinamak (vinegar with labuyo BUKOY is a modern twist on the traditional Filipino snack okoy. Instead of using papaya, we use fresh buko (young coconut) as the main ingredient, creating a lighter, crispier, and more flavorful version of the classic dish. Each serving of BUKOY is freshly cooked, golden brown, and best enjoyed with vinegar or as a quick snack anytime.

Company Name: CocoTwist Delights

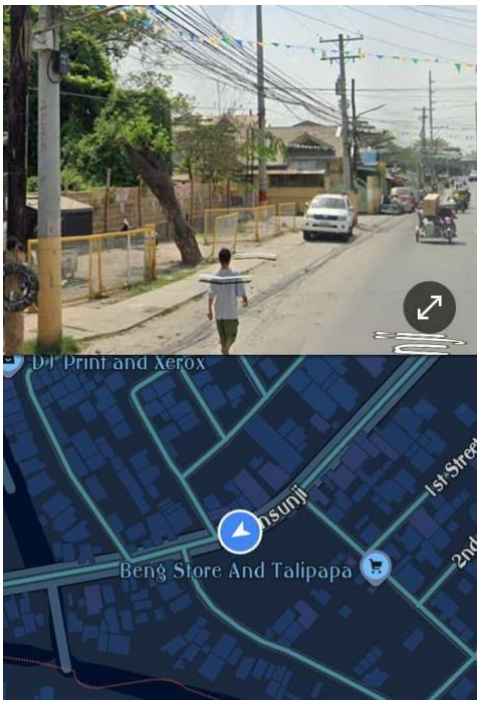
Is a food business that specializes in innovative coconut -based snacks. Combining traditional Filipino flavors with a modern twist. The company is committed to using fresh, locally sourced coconuts and quality ingredients to create flavorful, crispy, and satisfying products. Inspired by classic Filipino merienda like okoy. Coco Twist Delights offers unique treats that deliver both comfort and creativity in every bite celebrating local taste, craftsmanship, and innovation.

Product Name: Bukoy Bites

Logo Idea: A small plate of golden okoy with coconut shreds, with the words “Bukoy Bites” written in bold orange and white letters, and a small coconut image beside it.

Reason: I suggested Bukoy Bites because it’s short, easy to remember, and clearly shows what the product is. “Bukoy” stands for your unique version of okoy made with buko, while “Bites” makes it sound stackable and enjoyable. It’s simple but appealing, especially for students and young customers.

Location



Our chosen location is beside Osave in Barangay San Jose, City of San Fernando, Pampanga. It is in front of Angel's Burger and near the Petrolero Gas Station. We chose this spot because, every late afternoon until evening, food vendors start setting up their stalls. The area is well-lit and safe, making it easy for people to notice the food carts. The lively atmosphere and the smell of delicious food attract many commuters and passersby. There are also several food stalls nearby, creating a mini food hub that encourages people to stop and buy. Customers can easily find and access the place, and it's convenient even for those with motorcycles or vehicles. This makesthe location a great spot for business and earning profit.

Product Description

Logo Idea: A circular logo with a smiling coconut and crispy okoy pieces around it. The name “CocoTwist Delights” is written in a playful brown and green font to show the mix of coconut and natural ingredients.

Reason: I chose CocoTwist Delights because it gives a modern and catchy sound while showing that the company uses coconut (buko) with a twist in the traditional okoy recipe. The word Delights makes it sound fun and appetizing, perfect for attracting customers.

Mission

To offer freshly made, delicious, and innovative Buko na Okoy that provides a unique twist on a classic Filipino favorite. We aim to serve our customers affordable, healthy, and satisfying snacks made from natural ingredients, promoting both local flavorand nutritious eating.

Vision

To become a well-loved Filipino snack brand known for our signature Buko na Okoy, combining tradition and innovation. We envision BUKOY as a go-to food shop where everyone can enjoy tasty, affordable, and healthy snacks that bring people together anytime, anywhere.

Goals

To produce a new and exciting experience to our customer through our Bukoy bites. We aim to create an affordable price, healthy, and delicious food that inspire everyone to eat it.

- The goal of Bukoy Bites is to offer a fun and flavorful snack that people can enjoy anytime.
- It aims to give customers a unique bite-sized treat made from quality ingredients.
- Bukoy Bites wants to provide an affordable snack option for students and families.
- The product aims to stand out in the market with its delicious taste and creative branding.
- Bukoy Bites wants to satisfy cravings with a convenient and easy-to-carry snack.
- It aims to promote local flavors that customers can easily love.
- Bukoy Bites wants to build a reputation for freshness and good quality.
- The product aims to attract both young and adult consumers with its fun appeal.
- Bukoy Bites wants to support local sellers and small businesses through distribution.
- The goal of Bukoy Bites is to grow into a well-known snack brand in the community.

Tagline

"Sarap na May Twist"

The tagline "Sarap na May Twist!" means the product is delicious but has something new and exciting added to it. It tells customers that the snack is not ordinary because it offers a unique twist in flavor or texture.The phrase highlights that the product gives a familiar taste but with a creative surprise. It suggests that each bite is enjoyable because of its special twist that sets it apart from other snacks. The tagline also shows that the brand wants to be known for playful and innovative flavors. "Sarap na may twist" appeals to customer who like trying something tasty yet different. It gives a message that the product combines classic goodness with a modern twist. The tagline helps the product stand out because it promises a fun and memorable eating experience. It also hints that the snack has a signature twist that makes customers come back for more. Overall, the tagline makes the brand sound exciting, creative, and full of flavor.

Uniqueness

What makes BUKOY unique is its creative twist on the traditional Filipino okoy. Instead of using papaya, BUKOY uses fresh young coconut (buko), giving it a naturally sweet and refreshing flavor that stands out from the usual savory version. This innovation keeps the authentic Filipino taste while introducing a modern and healthier option for snack lovers. Its light yet crispy texture, combined with the distinct flavor of buko, makes BUKOY not only delicious but also one-of-a-kind in the local market.

Benefits

- Healthy Alternative: Made from natural buko, which is rich in nutrients and lower in calories than the usual papaya okoy.
- Affordable Snack: Offers a delicious and satisfying food choice that fits any budget.
- Locally Made: Uses fresh and local ingredients that support local farmers and
- promote Filipino products.
- Perfect for all Ages: Enjoyed by kids, adults, and seniors-great for merienda or side dish.
